

Leadership in Practice, Volunteer

Benjamin Jantz

Benjamin Jantz is a Canyon County farmer who goes above and beyond to volunteer and educate others about agriculture, land, and the importance of proper planning. He has completed two years of Leadership Idaho Agriculture programs – first as a student, then again as cochair to lead the program to help others.

Mr. Jantz hosts local, regional, and statewide leaders on his farm to demonstrate how farmers operate, share ideas on how to keep farms viable in the face of rapid growth, and discuss opportunities for farmers and government agencies to work together.

In addition, Mr. Jantz volunteers his time to local causes, including serving on the Canyon County Farm Bureau Board, the Nyssa/Nampa Sugar Beet Growers Association, and the Upper Deer Flat Fire Department.
