Dan Nabors

Dan Nabors is the Bureau Chief for the Transportation Engineering and Operations Bureau in Arlington County, Virginia, where he leads the county's signals, design, operations, streetlight, and Vision Zero programs.

Dan started his career as a commissioned officer in the United States Army Corps of Engineers before working in the private sector as a manager and transportation engineer.

There, he led teams on a variety of projects focusing on finding innovative solutions to integrate pedestrians, bicyclists, vehicles, and transit. Due to the nature of his projects, Dan has been engaged in working with a diverse set of stakeholders and the public and has been highly successful in finding common ground to implement improvements. From this expertise, Dan has been called upon to co-author more than a dozen publications and guidance documents for the Federal Highway Administration and develop courses for state and local practitioners.
